J. Patrick Curry graduated from Creighton University’s College of Business in 1978 and has come to be known as the “go to” alumnus in New York City. Mr. Curry is a man of the highest integrity and has demonstrated commitment, dedication and deep affection for his alma mater.

Mr. Curry is the Professional Practice Director for audit services at Deloitte & Touche LLP, in New York. He is a champion for Creighton students and has personally recruited Creighton alumni and mentored them as Deloitte employees.

Mr. Curry has served on many committees and was a key leader throughout Creighton University’s “Ignite the Greatness” campaign. He has served on the Heider College of Business Executive Advisory Council and is a member of Alpha Sigma Nu. He currently serves on both the Heider College of Business Advisory Board and is a former member of the National Alumni Board. Mr. Curry has helped underwrite many alumni events in New York City and helped organize one of the largest gatherings in the area.

In honor of his parents, he established the Donald and Delores Curry Endowed Scholarship to provide support for Creighton students with a financial need, and he also supports the Accounting Department Faculty Fund.

Mr. Curry takes part in other causes near to his heart, including serving as chair and treasurer of Goodwill Industries, treasurer of INROADS, board chair and treasurer of Nebraska AIDS Project, and he has participated in Creighton’s National Jesuit Alumni Day of Service.

For his service to others, his dedication to Creighton University and his support of students and alumni, J. Patrick Curry is a most deserving recipient of the 2015 Heider College of Business Alumni Merit Award.
